Vol. 112 No. 94 | Cameron, Milam County, Texas, Monday February 7, 1972 | 8 Pages Today

Now With F.M.L.

While sculptor James Brock is putting Cameron on the nation's art map, the Dallas Symphony and cellist Ralph Kirshbaum are putting Cameron on the Southwest's cultural map.

We received a report the other day of an interveiw Kirshbaum gave over a Tyler TV talk show. The report said Kirshbaum spoke for much of the 30-minute show about Cameron's response, the numbers, the enthusiasm for the orchestra and his solo performance.

James and I had two long days to talk about most everything on a recent weekend trip back and forth to Taos, N. M. And, of course, a central theme of these conversations was our view of art and culture in the lives of people everywhere and particularly in Central Texas.

Those views are not always the same, but the interest is the same in beauty, in a broader perspective of things and people, whether from a cowboy's vanishing Western world or from a newspaperman's generalist view.

Kirshbaum, according to the report, lavished praise on this community for seeing the value of this kind of music. Those here who heard this 25-year-old cellist - scholar's performance must appreciate what this means from an artist of his calibre.

People would like to place men like Kirshbaum and Brock in a box and label it "musician" or "sculptor" or "artist" and dismiss them as "different" and not necessarily central to people's need for wider experience.

As the Frenchman says, "au contraire." Wide experience for a few people, in terms of the hundreds among tens of millions, is no longer enough. We are living even closer together, even in Taos or Cameron, though the space between may all but be vacant, and the need is ever greater for experience that is broader without being "common".

James Brock, a native of this community, sees this. He is an example of a man who can grow in perspective as well as skill when our society presently encourages men in their 40s to look to retirement from the life they have accepted as "it."

We so often use the word "respect" in terms limited to the boxes we put people, as well as the gifted in. Respect, however, has new connotation when someone introduces a new element into limited experience, just as James has introduced a dimension into his life and Cameron that most people, who knew him all his life, find hard to believe.

Ralph Kirshbaum has done the same thing for Cameron and Milam County. By what he saw, by what he experienced here, by what Texas' oldest Symphony experienced, Kirshbaum found appreciation of their art form in a community easily dismissable in a metro area as "Country, Western".

While Brock, the native sculptor, is influencing art in one of the nation's most sophisticated art centers, Kirshbaum is influenced by what a symphonic artist might consider one of the least sophisticated Texas towns.

This is the kind of thing James and I spoke of, among others. If men as different as we can agree, it is hopeful for people committed to having their way, even to fracturing the world into bits and pieces.

That Kirshbaum interview did a lot for Cameron. And that trip to Taos did a lot for James Brock and me.

ICE COATED shrubs at the Claude Bailey home, 500 E. Gillis is a chilly reminder of the sub-freezing temperatures in Central Texas over the weekend.

Industrial Seminar Set For Wednesday

George McKinney, community development consultant with Texas Power and Light Co., will be one of the featured speakers at the Milam County Community Development Seminar set for Wednesday at Methodist Fellowship Hall.

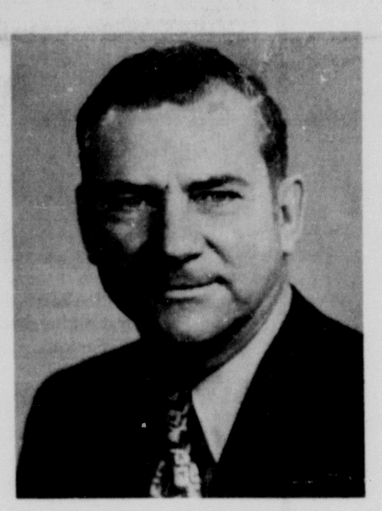
The seminar will start at 4 p.m. and end at 9, with representatives from the Small Business Administration, Texas Department of Community Affairs, Texas Industrial Commission, Industrial Development, Texas Power and Light Co., Tourist Development Division of the Texas Highway Department and the Central Texas Council of Governments.

Creating jobs through new industry and expanding present business, planning for growth, financing, setting goals for the county, are just some of the topics to be discussed at the workshop.

The program will consist of lectures, slides, movies and workshop type conferences designed to acquaint local community and business leaders with the newest development planning techniques. The entire agenda is designed to emphasize federal, state, local and private assistance in sound economic development of any community.

McKinney served two years as president of the Houston County Development Foundation which has an enviable record of plant locations. He is currently serving as president of the Southeastern Community Development Association providing a 13-state area a medium for exchange of ideas. He is an active member of the Texas Industrial Development Council and the Dallas Area Industrial Development Association.

A brief social will be observed with a meal hosted by the Cameron Chamber of Commerce and the Cameron Industrial Foundation. All area businessmen are invited to attend the seminar.



GEORGE McKINNEY

County Will Join CTCOG

In a special meeting Friday morning, Milam County Commissioners ended a three year controversy over county membership in a council of governments by voting to join the Central Texas Council of Governments based in Bell County.

Voting for the CTCOG membership were Commissioners LaVert McKinney, Albert Timmerman and Leroy Caffey. Buckholts Commissioner Adolph Gresak abstained.

Membership in a council of governments has been an issue with commissioners since Bell County officials broke away from the original Heart of Texas Council of Governments to form the Central Texas Council. Some city and school governments in Milam County had joined the Central Texas Council, but Commissioners last month had favored joining the Brazos Council of Governments because of welfare programs in operation there.

The surprise vote to join CTCOG came following contacts by Rockdale and Cameron city officials and Cameron Industrial Foundation officers who favored the Bell County organization.

Commissioner McKinney made the motion to join CTCOG on a trial basis for one year at an estimated cost of 6 cents per county resident.

Pressure to join a council has been building as most state and federal grants have required a council of governments approval. CTCOG proponents have pointed to the historic ties between Bell and Milam Counties and the fact that the two counties are in the same Congressional district. Those favoring the Brazos Council based their argument on welfare programs available and the fact that the State Highway Dept. district joins Milam to the Brazos area.

In other business Judge O. B. Harden appointed Commissioners McKinney, Timmerman and Caffey to a committee to study possibilities for providing rural fire protection.

Taos 'Hips' Welcome Establishment Meal

By Frank M. Luecke

Memories of Haight-Ashbury are fresh in your mind when you walk down the stairs into a place like "Sunshine", a Taos hip hangout complete with rock band and long hair.

A somewhat straight-looking type with a mustache, stirs little interest, even when you are accompanied by Jerry, the hip bronze caster, his friend, hip "chick" Cheetah, sculptor-bronzeman Frank Lyons and cowboy sculptor James Brock.

It is the same group which ate a steak across the plaza at one of the more popular restaurants in this art center, the same who heard a sort of gasp among Saturday night diners: "Look, those are hippies." Your hair shorter than styles worn by most men in the place, you wonder if they mean you. Oh, well.

Lyons is well known in the restaurant, and not unknown in "Sunshine", undoubtedly due to Jerry's connections and Lyons' mobility among the art colony's residents, which now includes quite a number of hips, even in winter.

Cheetah is along, it seems, because Jerry invited her, maybe Lyons. She is one of four hips whose spare frame quarters high in the mountains above Taos burned down a couple of nights before. Nobody knows how the fire started. She says she is from Ohio, and is quite an artist, interested also in community development and architecture, like another of her number who worked in New York in some kind of clinic.

James is host for the meal, feeling a bit "flush" from the sale of seven bronzes to a Denver engineer in Cameron just before we left for Taos. Lyons is in good form, keying interest in our otherwise benign group with explicatives worthy of a mule-skinner. Most of it is a show, it seems, proof of some artistic strength in a community that exists on art and scenic mountains.

James has reservations about hippies, for example, because he sees them eat a good meal paid for by a man they consider "establishment", but who defy the establishment's ways in their drop-out sub-culture.

Both of us are tired. It has only been an hour or so since James pulled his pickup in front of Lyons' ranch house, a few miles outside of Taos on a main road. His house is almost 800 miles from Cameron, a good day's drive.

So James is stoic about this combination of people and "Sunshine" scene, which now is common in movies and TV shows, where a lot of young people crowd in a small place, listen to a rock band that tries to shatter everybody's eardrums, shuffle some kind of dance and sit around. There may be "grass" puffing in the air, but it smells more like cigaret smoke.

One fellow, about 50, with hair as long as pictures you see of "Father Time", and dressed about as loosely, meanders along the upper level of the room.

The mix of people is quite different, young people who are Indian or Latin, mostly couples on dates and neatly dressed. You see the real hips with long hair, loose fitting clothing and a certain glaze in their young eyes which isn't quite so young.

Jerry points out a group sitting around a table, sipping drinks of various kinds, usually beer, and says they are part of a commune, apparently staying in Taos for quite some time.

"What about that 12-year-old boy," I ask. "Is he part of it?"

"I think his mother has gone to Santa Fe," Jerry says, ending the conversation.

Except for the 200-watt guitar amplifiers "blowing everybody's mind" with sound, the place is a lot like a teen center or club scene in a movie like "Gidget Goes West".

About 11:30, James says "it has been a long day, which is easy to agree with, the trip starting 20 hours earlier. And Lyons drives us back to his house.

It is cold, a crisp cold so clear in a full moon that mountains to the north look like vast gatherings of luminescent earth, topped with vanilla ice cream. The room is cold too.

Lights shine from the livingroom, little lights over canvases Lyons has painted. Light shines through a hallway from the kitchen. The moon shines through a picture window.

James says something about the long day, because he drove and wouldn't let me help. So he is asleep in short order.

I am gazing up at rafters of medium - size tree trunks across the den ceiling, lying stuffed in a bedroll spread over a bunk. A fireplace on one wall is curiously smoke covered on the front, maybe because it doesn't seem to have an outside chimney.

Books line shelves along a couple of walls; a large desk, wide enough to hold a small stereo set, some records and room for writing; a work bench across the room, bearing one of James' wax figures Jerry has been trimming. At the foot of the bunk, another wax figure, "gated" for pouring bronze, stands outlined in the crystalline moonlight. Not only large and pine paneled, the room is characteristic of the men who work in it.

One picture in the livingroom, where furniture is sparse, strikes you. It is a modern "Don Quixote", astride a 1919 motorcycle, holding a lamp post like a lance, pointed toward a windmill downhill. And you sense the engine is running. This is Lyons' view of a windmill joust. Cervantes would wonder about this "Rocinant."

And this is one of the lighted pictures which keeps you awake. Well, me. James long since turned over on his cot and expired for the night. He has an appointment with his gallery owner in the morning. I am supposed to go along for breakfast.

How do you sleep with moonlight like that almost shattering the window beside you? You wonder if Taos artists, the some two to three hundred paint much at night. In semi-daze, it appears eerie morning. James has seen it before, and I, in other places.

It may be the altitude, just under 7,000 feet. It is probably the drive, which you didn't drive. It may be James' pickup, which started out riding like a car, finishing definitely like a truck. You are tired, and don't know how to turn out those picture lights, and it's too cold to wander around in the room. So you turn over. . . .and hope James doesn't get up any earlier than sunrise.

Jr. High Physical Ed Program Teaches Skills

Cameron Junior High six and seventh graders are getting basic instruction in a wide variety of sports that will be useful all through life.

The new program was explained and demonstrated Thursday evening in the junior high gym by Max Morgan, physical education instructor, during the regular Parent-Teachers Association meeting.

The program is not unique, parents were told, but this is the first year for the varied activities at Cameron Junior High. Special equipment was purchased which allows the wide variety of sports.

Activities include softball, golf, basketball, badminton, table tennis, horseshoes, volleyball, tennis, and tumbling.

"We're trying to emphasize activities and sports the students can play for the rest of their lives," Morgan said. He added that the weather controls which activity is used, with outdoor sports taking place in the summer and spring, and others inside when it is cold or rainy.

He had a large group of students demonstrate various sports they have learned, in the gym Thursday evening. Demonstrations included volleyball, softball stance and pitch, horseshoes, table tennis, golf, badminton and basketball.

Average class size is 55 or 56 students, Morgan said.

He uses a special method of teaching the sports. First comes a lecture on the history and background of the sport, then the next day basic skills needed for the activity are learned. The next few days are spent practicing the skills and learning rules for the game. Then the activity is continued for 4 or 5 weeks.

At the end of the period the students are evaluated for grades.

The classes are coed, with Mrs. Wayne Weiser as girls advisor.

Morgan said several different activities can go on at the same time in the gym, which gives everyone a chance to participate.

The PTA program was a continuation of programs on various phases in the Cameron schools.

4,000 ISLANDS

Filing Fees Set For Candidates In Primaries

Secretary of State Bob Bullock has announced primary filing fees for candidates in the 1972 Republican and Democratic primary elections. The fees or an alternative nominating petition are "mandatory," Bullock said.

The schedule of fees for either a full term or an unexpired term for the various offices is:

All statewide offices $400; United States Representative $300; State Senator $150; State Representative $100, Member, State Board of Education $50; Chief Justice or Associate Justice, Court of Civil Appeals $100; District Attorney or Criminal District Attorney $100; All county offices $100;

County Commissioner $50; County surveyor $50; Justice of the Peace or Constable for counties under 200,000 population $25; over 200,000 population $50; for all party offices, none.

Bullock said no deposit shall be required to accept an application to have a candidate's name placed on the primary ballot. The filing fee required must be paid in full on or before the fourth Monday in February.

For any fee already collected, the chairman must return any amount in excess of the sums set out above unless the chairman has written confirmation that the amount above the set fee is a voluntary contribution.

Time, Place And Need...

Your Herald's "Old Philosopher" in the Herald of February 3 opened his column with an interesting salutation:

"The trouble with some people is they confuse something new with something better."

It is interesting that so many of us these days have thought the new of a computerized, impersonal modern life is superior because it is of our time, that no one before had come up with computers and mass production and communication.

We are, as a people in this world, having second thoughts. With ample reason.

Most people now, except third or fourth generation city dwellers, would give up metropolitan life for what it has become, not for what it really is.

They are learning the most complete computer yet is the human mind, able to program itself and to direct its output, given judgment, to an emotional as well as intellectual satisfaction. Man - made computers only do what men tell them.

Something new can be something better, but we are learning it is important to know the difference between what is better, new or old. Divisions that exist among people, generations and societies are created by strength and determination, which may or may not be oriented in what is better.

An example: Considerable concern exists in this country about the enormous wealth and power of organized crime gone "legit." A book called "The Mafia Is Not An Equal Opportunity Employer", by Nicholas Gage, an investigative reporter of The New York Times, documents the rise of organized crime from the days of prohibition, when well - organized prohibition forces led public opinion to outlaw manufacture of alcohol beverages in this country.

The bootlegging industry came of age in that era, and with it the resources of organized crime, which, according to Gage, has become larger than General Motors. People would drink, as it happened, anything. Prohibition laws subsequently were repealed.

A sense of moderation inveighed, then, against reaction to the serious consequences of alcohol, which ironically, contributed to an ubiquitous "establishment" larger than the nation's largest corporation.

We might see that something "new" is good for a time, or better, but that in a longer run, marginal in side effects.

Another example: Penicillin came on the market in the 40s and was heralded for its mastery of infections. A generation later, many people are allergic to this helpful anti - body while others fail to respond to its healing powers. New medicines succeed the old; new solutions for a time are better until they too must be superceded, even to searching out what "the ancients" might have used.

This mix of the practical and philosophical is probably what the "Old Philosopher" is suggesting. The new may not be better.

Nor may the "old" be any better. It is a matter of judgment in a given time, place and need.

What Others Say...

Saving The Cypress...

President Nixon will ask Congress to approve federal purchase of 547,000 acres of the Big Cypress Swamp of southern Florida to protect it from development and, therefore, to protect much of the water supply for Everglades-National Park. The president's annoucement came a week before scheduled hearings by Sen. Henry Jackson's Interior Committee on a bill to establish a Big Cypress National Recreation Area to accomplish the same purpose. Nixon may be playing a bit of political oneupmanship on Jackson, for whom Florida is a key primary election state in his pursuit of the Democratic presidential nomination. But who gets the credit hardly matters if the end result is the saving of the swamp.

Eating Fun With Early Texana Menu

By Jan Luecke

If you've been looking for something different to serve for a company meal, or just want to try a taste of the old west I suggest this menu reproduced for the Texas Press Association January meeting in Ft. Worth.

The exact meal was served during the first Texas Press Association meeting in Ft. Worth in 1887 at a cost of 78 cents per person. The 1972 version was $12 per person.

Some of the ingredients are harder to come by than a trip to the local market. For instance, to roast a possum you must catch one first. But the meal is a memorable one, and particularly good for company fare, if your company are good sports and interested in early Texana.

(Special Dinner—copy of menu of 1887 at first TPA convention in Fort Worth.)

Million Dollar Salad
Wild Prairie Chicken
Roast 'possum with Sweet 'Taters
Turnip Greens with Hog Jowl
Baked Grits Sherry
Aunt Hattie's Garden Peas with Wild Mushroom
Panhandle Potato Salad
Box Biscuits
Corn Pones
Chow-Chow
Jan's Pickles
Beets
Celery
Olives
Mayflower Apple Pie with Longhorn Cheese

MILLION-DOLLAR SALAD

Serves 14 to 16
3 lbs. white grapes, or white canned cheeries
2 cans pineapple
1 lb. marshmallows
1/2 lb. blanched almonds
Juice of 2 lemons
4 eggs
1 cup milk
2 cups heavy cream, whipped

Cut and stone grapes or cherries. Cut pineapple, marshmallows and almonds into cubes. Put these ingredients into large porcelain bowl, and pour lemon juice over.

Make a custard of eggs and milk. When cold, add cream, beaten stiff. Add to the fruit, etc. Let mixture stand 24 hours. Serve cold.

ROAST 'POSSUM WITH SWEET 'TATERS

To roast a 'possum, first catch the 'possum. Dress it and soak in salt water for 12 hours, then wash and parboil it in salt water until tender. Have ready some sliced sweet potatoes which have been boiled, until done, in clear water. Lay 'possum out flat in roasting pan; put slices of sweet potatoes all around it; add pepper and sufficient stock. Bake in a quick oven until a nice brown. Serve on a platter, using potatoes and parsley for garnishing.

NOTE: To dress opposum: to 1 gallon of boiling water add 1/2 cup of lime and scald opossum quickly. Pull off hair at once, scrape well; cut off feet, tail and remove entrails. If head is left on, remove ears and eyes. Cleanse thoroughly with hot water. Cover opossum with cold water, add 1/2 cup salt or less. Let stand 12 hours. Remove from salted water and pour over hot water almost to cover. Boil until skin is tender. Let stand in broth until time to bake. Bake as above.

MAYFLOWER APPLE PIE WITH CHEESE

This recipe is said to have "come over on the celebrated ship in the year 1620."

Rich pie crust for deep dish, with top crust
1 cup sugar
Tart apples to fill dish, about 3 cups
1/2 nutmeg tsp.
Dash cinnamon
1 tbsp. lemon juice
Handful of chopped citron
1/4 lb. butter

Collect and measure ingredients; peel and slice apples very thin, removing cores and seeds -- about 3 cups of tart apples. (Eating apples do not make a good pie.) Roll out bottom crust and line in earthen dish neatly. Spread 1/2 cup of the sugar evenly over the bottom. Arrange sliced apples in the dish, piling them as high as possible to make a pie rich in filling. Sprinkle remaining 1/2 cup of sugar over the apples, adding the nutmeg, a dash of cinnamon, lemon juice, and finely chopped citron and butter cut into bits. Roll out top crust, making a slit in opening to allow steam to escape. Wet edges of under crust together. Pie is ruined if juices escape. Place in a hot oven (400 degrees) to brown quickly; cover or turn pan over it; reduce the heat to 300 degrees and cook slowly for an hour. When the pie is baked, its apples will be tender, translucent, and juice will be like jelly. A shallow glass dish or earthen casserole with a cover can be used if you haven't an earthen dish. Add slice of cheese and allow to melt slightly.

LONGHORN-STYLE CORN PONE

1 cup water-ground meal
1 tablespoon lard
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 cup milk
Enough water to make soft batter

Mix the incredients well; bake or fry in pones (small cakes) until light brown. (Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes.)

TURNIP GREENS WITH HOG JOWL

Serves 4 to 6
1 lb. mustard greens
1/2 lb. salt pork or fresh hog jowl or ham hock (less if desired)
water to cover
1 lb. or more young tender turnip tops
Spring onions

Wash and drain mustard greens; pour in pot with meat with barely enough water to cover. Cook until meat is tender. Wash and drain turnip tops; boil in separate pot until tender. Add to meat pot and simmer a few minutes. Drain. Arrange meat over greens. Cut over all, several young spring onions. Serve the pot likker in cups, if you like. Serve with corn pone.

BAKED GRITS SHERRY

Serves 6.
1 cup uncooked grits

And now a word about H&R Block's competition.

Because we think our competition represents more of a threat to you than it does to us, we're going to help you sort them out.

Your Family

The greatest people in the world. Most of the time. Unfortunately, most of the time doesn't include income tax time. Because the last thing you need when you're doing your taxes is an aunt who took an accounting course just before she dropped out of college. Or a father who thinks how much money you make and what you do with it is something the rest of the family should know about.

Your Neighbors

You know the type. The mild-mannered shoe salesman next door who suddenly turns into a mathematical genius just about the time income tax is due. He knows all the angles. Some of which even the Internal Revenue Service doesn't know about yet. And he's willing to share them with you, "Just to be neighborly."

You

Your own worst enemy. All year long you can't balance your check book, but that doesn't stop you. Armed with your W-2's, a few reams of paper and a couple of gallons of coffee you bravely attack that stack of forms. You may be taking deductions you're not entitled to, and entitled to deductions you're not taking. So, should you be doing your own taxes?

Us

We're H & R Block, with over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained tax preparers who eat, sleep, and drink income tax returns. People who set out to save you money and much of the time do it. The cost? Fees start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for over 7 million customers we served last year.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

And everyone is eligible to receive our year 'round service which is covered by our one time fee. No extra charge for help with audits, estimates, or tax questions.

We know the people we've just told you about will do your income tax return for less than we can but we don't think you can afford them.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Texas IC To Intensify International Efforts

LONGVIEW

The Texas Industrial Commission has voted to intensify its international efforts with approval of at least three overseas trade missions, including a ten day visit to eastern bloc countries.

The Commission unanimously adopted plans to join with the U.S. Department of Commerce in their booth at the Bucharest, Romania International Trade Fair, and simultaneously take Texas manufacturers into Moscow, Russia. The TIC also approved an August mission to Brazil.

The highly specialized Eastern European mission will be held May 2-12 and will be open to a limited number of Texas manufacturers of oil field, refinery and petrochemical equipment only.

Jim Havey, director of international trade, said the dual mission would involve no more than 20 businessmen, spending five days in Bucharest and five days in Moscow. Half will open their mission in Moscow and will change places after five days with those at the Bucharest Fair.

Havey said the Eastern European trading block import - export turnover with the West amounted to $22 billion in 1970, but the U.S. share of this was only about 2 percent.

"We want Texas to lead the United States in recovering a major portion of the $22 billion," he said.

He cited a recent report revealing the Soviets have complained that Americans are not trying hard enough to sell to the U.S.S.R.

"They cite the fact that their main contact with American companies is through Japanese or Western European firms, where such firms were licensees or subsidiaries of an American company," Havey said.

The Brazil trade mission is primarily focused on the Sao Paulo area, which Havey said was the fastest growing city in the world.

The mission will be open to all Texas manufacturers interested in securing new markets.

The Commission also authorized the International Trade Division to participate for the second year in the Reverse Investment Mission sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce and National Association of State Development Agencies to Western Europe.

The seminars will be held in Cologne, Germany and Stockholm, Sweden May 16-26. Prospects from practically all Western European countries are expected at the seminar.

Any manufacturer interested in taking part in any of the overseas missions should contact the International Trade Division of the Texas Industrial Commission in Austin.

Rep. Charles Patterson Files For 36th District

State Representative Charles Patterson filed Tuesday for a third term in the Texas House of Representatives from the 36th Representative District. As a result of recent redistricting. Williamson, Milam and Falls counties now comprise this district of approximately 74,000 population.

Patterson filed with Milam County Democratic Chairman C. R. (Roy) Law and made a voluntary contribution of $128. "That sum would have been the required filing fee under House Bill 15 which a recent court ruling has declared unconstitutional," Patterson said. "In the absence of a statutory fee, I want to contribute this amount towards helping the party carry out the election processes."

Whe first elected in 1968, Patterson was the youngest representative in the 150-member House. He was unopposed for a second term.

"It is a privilege to serve the citizens of Milam County," Patterson said. I look forward to meeting new friends and renewing friendships of long standing. I am most grateful for the warm greeting I have received from the people during my recent travels through this fine county."

A government and economics graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, Representative Patterson has earned a reputation as a tireless worker who researches and studies legislative matters thoroughly and devotes fulltime to the job of representing his district. He holds committee membership in areas that are important to the district -- Livestock, Highways and Roads, Labor, Banking, and Youth. He has also served on Agriculture and Governmental Offices and Efficiency.

The 28-year old Patterson was recently appointed to the interim committee composed of legislators and lay leaders which has the responsibility of finding ways and means of financing public school education, in view of the court's having declared the present method unconstitutional. "This is a problem which affects all Texans and it is going to take a tremendous amount of study to come up with an equitable and acceptable plan," the lawmaker declared. "And I firmly believe that whatever plan is devised must allow us to retain local control of our young people's education."

Patterson is an officer in Taylor Savings and Loan Association. He is married to the former Elise Thayer of Farmers Branch, Texas, and has two children, a daughter, Neil, and a son, Thayer. He is an officer in the National Guard. While on active duty, Patterson was awarded the "American Spirit on Honor Medal" for "qualities of leadership and high example to comrades in arms."

Bill Hobby Proposes Ethic Group

AUSTIN

Bill Hobby, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, officially filed for office today and called for the return of reputation and credibility to state government. He proposed a concerned - citizens, statewide Ethics Commission.

The 40 - year - old President and Executive Editor of the Houston Post newspaper told the Capitol Press Corps that the very word "politican" is distasteful to the average Texas voter who rightfully has grown cynical with state officials seeking office for personal gain rather than public service.

"Texas has reached a crisis of confidence and the state's present Code of Ethics written in 1957 is not strong enough in the area of conflicts of interest," he said.

Hobby continued, "As a newspaper editor, I watched and helped unravel the Frank Sharp stock scandal. The continuation of such conflicts of interest on the part of our state officials should not be allowed to continue.

"Only with a strong Ethics Code can the public be protected against such shenanigans," he explained.

America the Dangerous.

Where 200,000 miles of obsolete highways lie ready to take your life—unless...

unless you join the drive for safer roads. You pay license fees and gasoline taxes. You deserve something better than narrow lanes, blocked visibility, dangerous curves, and other hazards that can claim your car. And maybe your life. Right now, America has about 200,000 miles of substandard primary highways. Designed and built many years ago they're far from adequate for today's motoring needs. Ride them with extra care. Money is available for road upgrading. But threats are being made to divert this money to other than highway uses. Contact your local highway officials. You owe it to yourself, and many others, to take action. This doesn't have to be America the Dangerous...unless you want it to be.

CURTIS FORD

Ford To Run For Lt. Governor

Curtis E. Ford, former member of the Texas House of Representatives stated that he will seek the office of lieutenant governor.

Ford stated his announced platform will be simple, limit the terms of office of all statewide public officials, including the governor and lieutenant governor, "to curb the evil of professional political machines."

On law enforcement, "we have hundreds of law trying to enforce the ten commandments," he stated, "we have the laws, give the officials the tools to enforce them and pay more attention to the needs of the law abiding and feel less concern for the criminal."

Ford said, "It is time the people of Texas began to understand the real power that the Texas Senate has in our government and to remember that the all powerful committee assignments are made by the Lt. Governor.

"This is amost powerful office and more attention must be given it." Ford stated that he will become involved with all legislation presented effecting Texas and its people.

Ford, 48, was born in Bronson, attended Corpus Christi public schools and the University of Houston. He served overseas with the marine corps in World War II.

MOON'S PULL

The moon's gravitational pull affects more than the oceans. A full moon directly overhead may lift the North American continent six inches, and the Earth's atmosphere may bulge out a mile or more toward the moon. Even people respond to the moon's gravity, gaining and losing a fraction of an ounce with each rise and fall of the tides

DOORS OF YOE

By Marilyn Hauk

The way a person walks and talks tells a lot about that person, but what can you say about someone when he is imitating John Wayne in Algebra II? Ask Dennis Hardwick--perhaps explaining himself is another of his many talents.

If you were anywhere near Yoe High this week and heard several choruses of "Happy Birthday" you can be sure that Debby Coker or Gary Thweatt were somewhere near. They both celebrated being seventeen.

Linda Hollas, when are you going to learn that fights are a no-no? You just can't start trouble in the halls without a reason.

Steve Thweatt, you're looking a little bald lately, aren't you?

"Sadie Hawkins" visited Yoe High this week. The girls bought their dates for a grand sum of 25¢, and supposedly furnished transportation.
